WHEREAS, given the increasing amount due to the Connecticut Housing Finance Authority by virtue of its mortgages which are prior in right to the City of Norwich mortgages, the likely costs and fees to be incurred by the Committee of Sale in conducting a sale, and doubt as to the fair market value given the differences in values assigned by the two appraisals, the Council of the City of Norwich finds that accepting a payment of $10,000 to release its mortgages as part of a short sale is in the best interest of the City; and
